Leeds Beckett University, Carnegie Faculty, School of Sport

An equal opportunities employer

CAF288971A

Full-time, permanent

Grade 5 (£27,864 to £31,342)

We are investing in our research and enterprise provision and seeking to appoint a Research Officer to join our team of experienced academic and support staff. We are looking for an inspiring and enthusiastic person to make a key contribution to our expanding research and enterprise work within the area of sport coaching.

Applications are invited from persons capable of making a substantial contribution to our applied research and consultancy work. They will be able to contribute to projects across sport coaching related disciplines, and support the development of new and existing partnerships, including the International Council for Coaching Excellence. The successful candidate will have experience of research and consultancy within sport coaching, be able to liaise with a variety of external client groups, and have a strong appreciation of the inter-disciplinary nature of our work.

The Carnegie School of Sport, with its 80 year history, has a strong reputation for excellence within sport and physical education. We offer a wide range of very popular sport related undergraduate and postgraduate courses that provide distinctive pathways for our students and meet the vocational requirements of an expanding field. Research and consultancy activities underpin our teaching, with academic staff being recognised as experts within their fields. The quality of this research is evident in the outstanding results achieved in the 2014 Research Excellence Framework, where we ranked 2nd nationally when accounting for both research quality and the number of contributing staff.

Closing date: 13 April 2015
